HOW TO CURE THE GRIP.

A Chicago Doctor Explains an Effective Method of Treatment.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—Local physicians are preparing for a probable visitation of the grip again this winter, and are devoting considerable study to the best method of handling the disease.

Dr. Frederick M. Goodman, Ph. G., of the Chicago College of Pharmacy, has what he considers a sure cure for any case of grip.

"I have treated the disease," he said yesterday, "on scientific principles. I have found that alcohol, borax and heated air are deadly enemies of organisms which have caused so much trouble during the past two years. The weakest part of the body is always attacked first, the nose, eyes, or ears.

"Now, as soon as the symptoms of the grip appear, the patient should go to a stove and inhale air. This of itself is sufficient in some cases to destroy the organisms. But in addition to the hot air, alcoholic vapors and powdered borax should be inhaled.

"For the eyes, I would recommend a mixture of four grains of borax to one ounce of rosewater. When the ears are attacked treatment must be directed to the throat. A small lump of borax may be dissolved in the mouth. In any case the patient should sit by the stove, using the alcoholic vapor and heated air.

"If fever is noticeable the same procedure should be followed. For adults who are attacked by fever, fifteen grains of acetanilid may be taken every half hour. In cases of very high fever, cold water baths may be applied to the head.

"The only object is to destroy the bacillus, and this treatment never fails. I think it a good plan for every person to carry in the pocket a two-ounce vial of alcohol, and a small box of pure borax to hold in the mouth for the throat.

"In this way every man may be his own doctor, and I am sure that if these directions are followed we shall be able to ward off any serious effects of the grip.

Sunday Laws, Etc.

EDITOR SENTINEL.—Seldom have I read an article of the same length fuller of misstatement, misquoting, and unwarranted assumption, than the one under the above caption in your issue of Nov. 27th.

Because a man subscribes himself as a "Friend of Law," does he, therefore, pledge himself to defend any and all unjust legislative enactments that may be passed? Surely not, in the minds of sensible people.

"Friend of Freedom" informs us that "all reforms have had to fight in their first steps." Does he mean to say that opposition to Sabbath laws is a reform? If so, it is one hoary with age. There has been opposition to every one of the ten Commandments since the day of their enactment, and doubtless will be as long as men "Love darkness rather than light," and choose to ignore the claims of God's law. But it is certainly a little novel, if not a little "neeky" to claim that a move to set aside one of the ten Commandments is "a reform."

But what about Mr. Medill's extermination of the Chicago Methodist preachers? What about his overthrow of the Fourth Commandment by "unanswerable argument, undisputed facts of history?" To begin with, was he not a "backslider Methodist," or an "unbaptized heathen" setting himself up as authority on Scripture exposition. Any person who would give the same scope of authority to Leviticus xxi, 24 to 26, that he does to the Fourth Commandment, betrays an ignorance of Scripture teaching that at once unites him to be a teacher. The nearest novice to Bible teaching knows that in the "Ten Commandments," the Fourth included, and grew to the world's great "Magna Charta," his fundamental and unchangeable law for the moral government of this world. They apply to all ages, to all dispensations and to all times, and that the law referred to in Leviticus related to the establishment of a memorial feast, under the Mosaic dispensation that had its complete fulfillment in the coming of Christ, and hence came to an end with the rest of the Jewish economy. In his reference to St. Paul's teachings in Romans xiv, 5, "Friend of Freedom" is equally unfortunate in his inferences. A careful study of Paul's writings will show that he is not discussing the question of the Christian Sabbath, but the question of feast days. Dr. Barnes, the great Presbyterial divine, in commenting on this verse says: "The inquiry pertained to meats and festival observances among the Jews, and to their scruples about partaking of food offered to idols, etc., and there is no more propriety in supposing that the subject of the Lord's day is introduced here than that he advances principles respecting baptism as the Lord's supper." Again he says: "Who knows not that the Christian Sabbath has never been neglected or profaned by any design to glorify the Lord Jesus or to promote his Kingdom." A disregard of the Sabbath is the companion of all other forms of disobedience, immorality and crime.

Again, "Friend of Freedom" is equally astray in his quotation from Luther. Every reader of church history knows that Luther was not opposing the proper observance of the Christian Sabbath, but was opposing the idolatrous manner in which the Church of Rome observed it. No day is a day to be worshipped. There is a vast difference between making an idol of a day, and the sacred observance of a day for religious uses. "Friend of Freedom" has rattled a huge task on his flank when he undertakes to make intelligent people believe that Paul and Luther and Calvin were enemies of the Christian Sabbath. No, I am not the friend of the "Whisky Law" nor of the "Lottery Law," but of "God's Law," the proper observance of which elevates humanity and makes the world better.

Horticultural Meeting.

The society met in the office of Wm. Kaucher, Dec. 19th, at one o'clock with the president in the chair.

There was a large variety of subjects before them for discussion, and among the subjects was

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

G. P. Lockhardt said now was the time to begin preparations for that fair on the part of the fruit growers of this society. He said if persons had an apple that was promising that the tree should now be trimmed so as to develop the apple to the very best advantage.

Thinning the fruit should be attended to so as to develop the fruit to the very best advantage, and thus get the best possible specimens and have them preserved in cold storage until they were wanted for exhibition.

Mr. Lockhardt has long been in the fruit business and is a careful observer of any and all kinds of fruit. He recently attended the state meeting at Sedalia and there saw specimens of fruit from all parts of the state, and he is confident that the apples raised here are superior to any of those of any other portion of the state, in color, size and quality.

Our president exhibited fruit at Sedalia which drew premiums more than as high again as others and all of the fruit was given premiums upon all points of its merits.

The subject of protecting trees from the depredations of mice and rabbits claims some attention before the society. Some had tried washes of various kinds, others had rubbed their trees with liver, and others had killed rabbits and rubbed their trees with all parts of its body and found no protection beyond a short time, and it was thought that screen wire was the best remedy, all things considered.

The secretary read a letter from A. A. Weaver, of Warrensburg, Mo., who said he had advised in "Orchard and Mill" that we were wanting and he had one that he could put in here if desired. The secretary was instructed to write him and invite him to come and see for himself the advantages that are presented here for such an industry.

Mr. Murray has been in correspondence with a man in Michigan in regard to a BARKLEY FACTORY here. There is some prospect of securing that industry here. While speaking on the subject of barrels he said the society at Sedalia had adopted the large barrel, and then had also adopted the large quart for berries instead of the wine measure quart. Some fruit jars had already been ordered to put fruit in for the Chicago fair. Mr. Murray informed the meeting that one man, a manufacturer of jars, said that he had manufactured 17 different quart measures.

Mr. Milne said where he had formerly lived a man had a cider press that made about as much again cider to the bushel of apples as could be made with a hand mill, and that the cider too was far superior in quality.

Dr. Goslin inquired in regard to the condition of fruit buds and was answered by Mr. Murray who had examined them and reports them in good condition.

The meeting was greatly surprised to see W. R. Laughlin, our former secretary, among us, and from the general hand shaking that was indulged in for some time, it was very evident that he was welcomed among us.

Upon the whole this was one of the most interesting meetings that we have had for some time.

The committee appointed some time ago to prepare a program will, if deemed it best, prepare one for our next meeting, Jan. 16, 1892.

S. BLANCHARD, N. F. MURRAY, Secretary, President.

Deadwood, S. D.

The problem of easy access to the above point is now solved by the opening of the new line of the Burlington Route into this live city of the Black Hills country.

On February first the New Branch of the B. & M. R. R., leaving the main line of the Black Hills extension at Edgemont, S. D., was opened for business, thus supplying a long felt want for a direct rail line from the Missouri river to the Black Hills. The service and equipment on this new line will be up to the usual high standard of Burlington Route trains and will consist of day coaches and Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars. A through Pullman Sleeper will leave Omaha daily at 10:30 A. M., arriving in Deadwood the next day at 12:30 noon. Parties from points south and east of Kansas City or St. Joseph can take a through Sleeping Car leaving Kansas City at 9:15 and St. Joseph at 11:15 P. M., for Lincoln, arriving there the next morning in ample time to make connection with the through Sleeper for Deadwood.

For further information in regard to rates, etc., call on or address H. C. Orr, G. S. W. P. A., 509 Main St., Kansas City, Mo., or A. C. DAWES, G. M. & P. T. A., St. Louis, Mo.

St. Henry Thompson, the noted London physician, says that more than one-half of the diseases of modern life are caused by easily avoidable errors in diet.

It is well known that the drunkard brings his ruin upon himself, but it is startling to be told in effect by so able a physician that, but for our ignorance, it is as much a sin to be ill as to be drunk.

The proprietors of Garfield Tea have been doing missionary work in this field. They include with each of the millions of free samples they yearly distribute, valuable medical essays on the diet and water as remedies and of diet in disease; and with each package of Tea a booklet worth its weight in gold, written by a well-known hygienic physician, residing in New York and London, and a graduate of the New York University Medical College, pointing out a few simple rules whereby all persons of ordinary intelligence are able to conduct an attack of illness without calling a doctor; showing how to get well and keep well, and how to live that no one can get long and healthy unless he is able to conduct an attack of illness without calling a doctor; showing how to get well and keep well, and how to live that no one can get long and healthy unless he is able to conduct an attack of illness without calling a doctor.

And also, why the great success attending treatment at Garfield and other famous health springs; and shows how anyone may substantially get all the good results that come from such health resorts at home, by following the rules plainly set out in the little book.

Why are physicians so much opposed to proprietary medicines? Is it because such mercurious articles as Pond's Extract or Garfield Tea become household necessities, and enable people to do their own doctoring and so keep money out of the pockets of physicians.

AN AWFUL TRAGEDY.

Joseph Ensor, After Trying too Kill His Wife, Blows the Top of His Head Off.

At 1 o'clock, Thursday 17th, residents of Graham, a small village two miles from Matland, Mo., were startled by two shots fired in the house of Joseph Ensor. A few moments later Mrs. Ensor ran from the house bleeding and screaming in terror.

As the neighbors started for the house another shot was heard, and when they entered the kitchen, the body of Joseph Ensor was found in a chair with the top of his head blown off.

Brains and blood were splattered about the floor. He had placed the muzzle of a shotgun in his mouth and pulled the trigger.

He had gotten out of bed and dressed. His wife asked: "What's the matter?" "I am going to get some medicine," he replied, and went out.

He came back in a moment with a loaded revolver. His wife screamed and threw up her hands. As she did so, he fired and the ball went through her hand. She turned and ran. He fired at the fleeing woman again but missed her.

Then he went down stairs and with careful deliberation sat down, put the end of the gun in his mouth and fired. It is generally believed that Mr. Ensor was insane. He was 70 years of age and had been brooding and melancholy for some months.

He was a prominent Mason and Odd Fellow and was buried under the auspices of the latter organization.

He left a sealed letter for his son, Thomas H. Ensor, stating what disposition he wanted made of his property and personal effects. He stated that he was tired of living and directed that he be buried beside his first wife, the mother of his children.

The dead man had three daughters and one son, who is a prominent attorney of Savannah, Mo., and who is well known in this city. He passed through this city yesterday afternoon en route to Matland, which is fifty-five miles north on the K. C. road.

Behind the terrible tragedy in which Joseph Ensor's life went out there lies a romance, which began away back in Maryland before the war.

Joseph Ensor, then a young and handsome man, loved a girl named Margaret. The affection was mutual, but her parents interfered and prevented a marriage.

Margaret married and became Mrs. Margaret Snyder. A son, D. H. Snyder, was born of this marriage and now lives in this city, on South Eleventh street. Her husband is said to have died in Italy prison.

After a time she married again to a Mr. Sparwasser. This time a daughter, Hester Sparwasser was born. She also resides here.

About 1891 Mr. and Mrs. Sparwasser came west and located at Graham. Strangely enough, they found that her old time sweetheart, Joseph Ensor, lived near the village.

He, too, had married, prospered and grown rich. He owned a large farm and had ample means.

About six years ago Mrs. Ensor died. After a time Mrs. Sparwasser was granted a decree of divorce from her husband.

Then the old, dead love sprang up again. Last summer Joseph Ensor and Margaret Sparwasser were married in this city after a long absence.

The marriage has not been a happy one. Quarrels have occurred and the awful tragedy is the sequence of a drama which began with love whisperings in the moonlit streets of Baltimore. — St. Joseph Herald.
